A company awarded with a “Health & Productivity Management Outstanding Organization” designation is a company that considers managing employee health from a corporate management perspective and is strategically engaged in such efforts.

Olympus believes that creating a workplace environment in which its employees can work in good health and with vitality is a prerequisite for advancing the company’s various activities. To support this, Olympus established the Olympus Health Declaration in April 2018, which proclaims management’s commitment to firmly support maintaining and promoting the health for its employees and their families, in cooperation with Olympus Health Insurance Society.

Among those measures, Olympus is working to establish and strengthen a health management support system, enhancement of cancer screening using various methods including endoscopes, and implementation of online seminars and health guidance in response to changing workstyles during the Covid-19 pandemic. These efforts were recognized with this certification.

Olympus will continue to actively develop health management measures aimed at achieving its corporate philosophy of “Making people’s lives healthier, safer and more fulfilling,” giving priority to the health of the employees—and their families—who are vital to supporting those activities.
